

'My Travel Formula' Presentation

In chemistry, a formula shows how elements combine to make a compound. For example, Hydrogen and Oxygen combine to make H₂O, or as we usually say, water.

When we hear “travel”, we usually think of taking a trip. But travel can have a more general meaning: to move, to advance, to go from one point to another. In our lives, we do all sorts of traveling. For this presentation, you will talk about 3 types of “travel” in your life and how those “elements” make the compound called YOU.

Aim: Share about yourself and how “travel” has shaped you.

Contents: Pick 3 different types of travel (from 3 different categories below).

Method: Describe each element with specific and interesting details.

Speaking Time: 3-4 minutes

Script: 300-400 words (including simple intro and conclusion)

PPT: 4 slides (intro slide with formula + 3 slides with pics only - no animation)

| Types of Travel | | | | |
|---|---|---|--|---|
| Trip | Daily Life | Progress | Social | Time |
|  |  |  |  |  |
| Tourism (Local, National, International) | Commute (Car, Bus, Subway, Bike) | Change of Opinion | Joining or Starting | Story from Childhood |
| School Field Trip | Going from Point A to Point B | Lesson from Mistake | Building / Evolving Relationship | Object Timeline: Item's History in Your Life |
| Visiting Someone (Family, Friends, etc.) | Chores Daily Routines Playing Sports | Skill Journey | Leaving Transitioning Saying Goodbye | Imagining Future You |

Use this page to plan your speech. Start by introducing yourself and previewing your travel formula. Then share your 3 stories with specific and sensory details. Finish with a short concluding thought.

My Travel Formula:

Travel Type 1:

Travel Type 2:

Travel Type 3:

Concluding Thought:

WOW!

Transition
(Connecting Sentence)

WOW!

Transition
(Connecting Sentence)

